MISSOULA--

High school students aged 14 to 18 can build the singing, acting and movement skills needed for musical theater during a summer camp at The University of Montana.

Camp offerings include scene performances and recitals; daily classes in movement, acting and singing; master classes in auditioning, makeup, improvisation and musicianship; and optional private voice lessons. Tuition includes one private voice lesson with a camp faculty member.

The camp is open to students who have completed grades eight, nine, 10, 11 and 12. The application deadline is June 7; call (406) 243-6880 for registration information.
